2. Submission

- Complete thesis filing and submission

Step 1. Key in

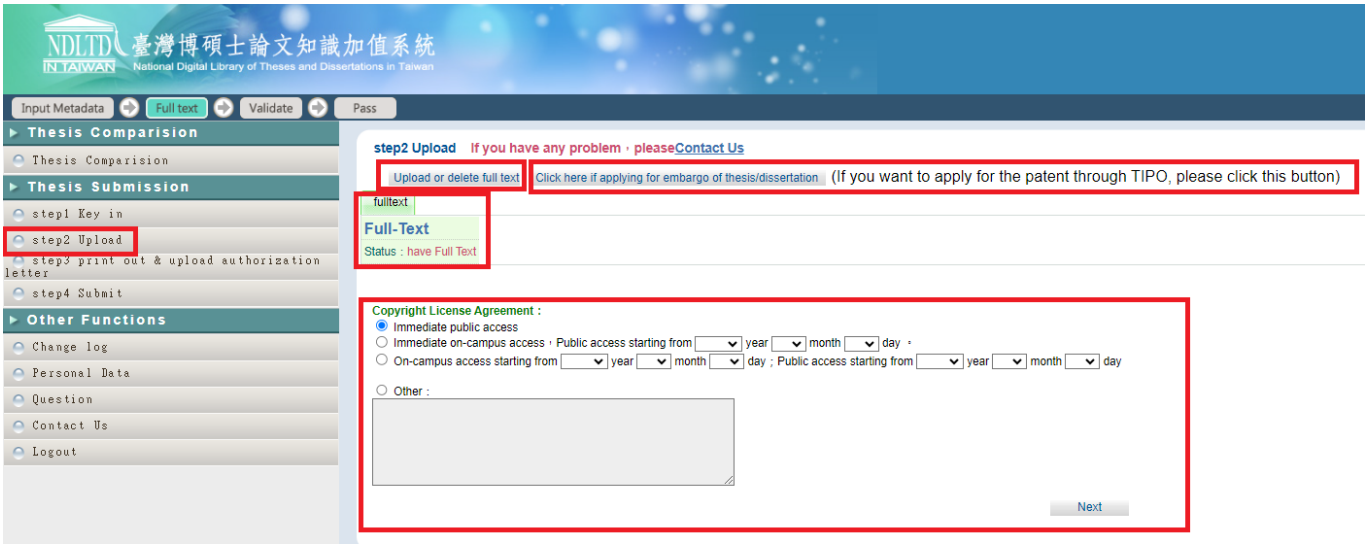

- Key in basic information, abstracts in both Chinese and English, table of contents, and references.

- Foreign Name: Please use the English name that appears in your passport.

Step 2. Upload

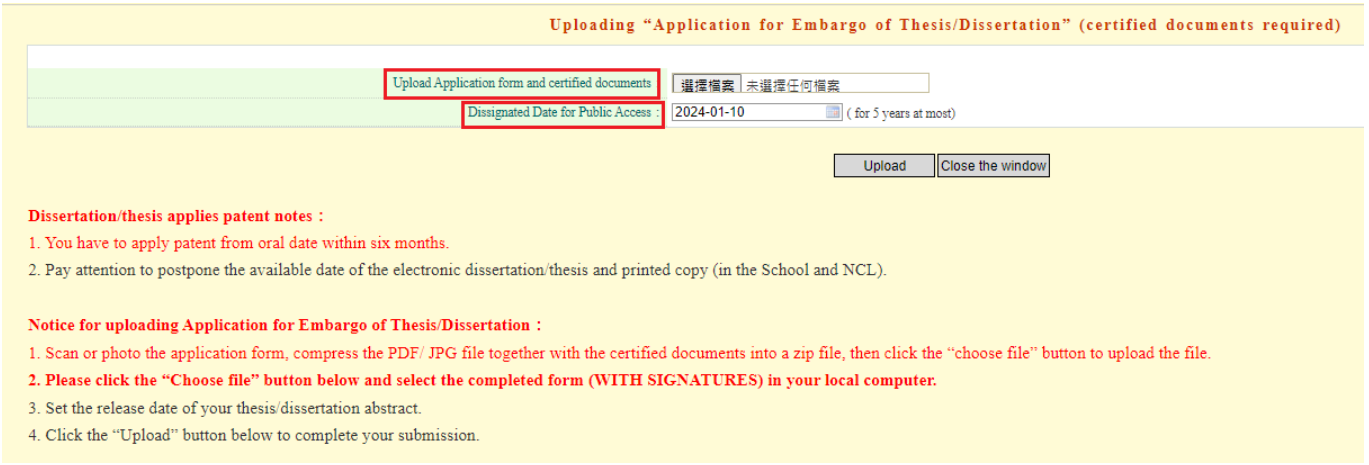

- Upload full text archive (should be a PDF file) and set Copyright License Agreement (the time your thesis opens to public).

- The thesis may be postponed from public disclosure only if it involves patent applications, national secrets, or legal restrictions prohibiting disclosure.

  (1) Need to fill out the 'Application for Embargo of Thesis/Dissertation' and submit the original copy, along with supporting documents, signed by the supervising professor, to the department.

  (2) Scan the application form and supporting documents into PDF files, then upload them in Step 2 of the thesis system by clicking on 'Click here if applying for embargo of thesis/dissertation' and set the physical thesis delayed public release date (maximum five years). If the graduate student does not set a delayed public release date, the National Central Library will treat it as an immediate release, and the full-text electronic document can be accessed.

Step 3. Print out & upload authorization letter

- Print/Upload two signed authorization forms (National Central Library Authorization Form and Yuan Ze University Thesis Authorization Form). Submit the original copy, signed by the graduate student and the supervising professor, to the department.
